Jill Compton: Striking Mindset

Darlene Wendels • The Collegian

Reigning Mountain West Pitcher of the Year Jill Compton has helped launch the Bulldogs to a Top 25 national ranking.

By Cox Odia
@coxthaone

Senior softball pitcher Jill Compton is one of the most accomplished student-athletes to walk the halls of Fresno State, but it's not her individual awards that motivate her.

"I just love softball," Compton said. "So I think that's like my biggest motivation is that it's so much fun to me, and my teammates are my motivators because they're great people. They're my friends, so it's just fun to go out with them and play with them."

Compton begins her daily routine by waking up at 6 a.m. every day to go to the weight room. Then she goes to practice, has her classes, then goes home to get as much rest as possible, just to wake up and do it all over again.

Born and raised in Oceano, California, Compton credits her parents, Sandra and Bill, and two older siblings, Chris and Jaclyn, for being there to support her when she is in need of advice. But like any other daughter, Compton holds a special place for her father.

"My dad helped me so much with softball, and anytime I would want to go out to the mound or out to the field, he would come out with me," Compton said. "Regardless of how I was doing, he was always supportive, so I think my dad has been one of the reasons I have been successful."

Compton's hard work and dedication on the mound manifested itself in a phenomenal junior campaign in 2015. She was named Mountain West Pitcher of the Year and was the only Bulldog named to the All-Mountain West First Team, posting a 28-11 record and leading the league in strikeouts and ERA.

In addition, she captured All-Region First Team, Academic All-Conference honors and was named Mountain West Pitcher of the Week six times, including four consecutive, becoming the first in conference history to do so.

"I owe my success to my coaches and my teammates," Compton said. "My coach has taught me so much pitchingwise and mentally, and my teammates have my back with their energy – without them I wouldn't be anything."

Compton has helped lead the Bulldogs to an undefeated 5-0 opening-weekend record, which propelled them into the nation's Top 25, a position they haven't been in since 2011. The 'Dogs check in at No. 22 in the ESPN.com/USA Softball Collegiate Top 25 and No. 24 in the USA Today/NFCA Division I Softball Coaches Poll.

Compton has continued to hone her skills on the mound and has consistently improved every year. On Tuesday, the senior ace was named the Louisville Slugger/NFCA Pitcher of the Week, her first career national weekly accolade.

As the reigning MW Pitcher of the Year, Compton is still adding to her highly decorated career. She appeared in four games last weekend with three starts and posted a 3-0 record along with a 0.33 ERA while picking up her 10th conference pitcher of the week accolade.

During 21 innings pitched, she also struck out 17 batters while allowing only one run and tossing her first complete shutout of the season against No. 23 Utah. She was deemed the Mountain West Softball Player of the Week by College Sports

Madness for her outstanding performance in the circle last week.

"It's an honor," Compton said. "I have worked really hard for this, but I couldn't do it without my teammates' support and how strong they have been on defense. It was really comfortable to pitch because we came out hitting and had good energy."

Compton's intense play and focus on the mound may just have something to do with her quirky pregame rituals and routines.

"Usually to prepare for a game, what I do every time I go out to the mound, I draw an 'A' with a circle around it in the dirt," she said. "It just means 'attack,' so regardless of anything, all I want to do is attack each pitch and have confidence in that pitch. I have a routine with Whitney [Smith], our shortstop, and she just tells me to attack each hitter, each pitch at a time, and she will tell me funny things to lighten the mood a little bit."

But Compton was not always a standout player. It took dedication and a little sibling rivalry to up the stakes.

"I was actually very bad at softball," Compton said. "I wanted to do anything my sister did. She played basketball, volleyball and softball, so I would do everything that she did because I wanted to be like her. I was better at softball, but she was better at all the other things."

Aside from softball and academics being the center point of her life at the time, Compton loves to be outdoors and just relaxing with her family and friends any chance she gets.

"Well softball takes up a lot of our time, but when I go home, I like to hike, and I just like to spend time with my family members and my friends," she said.

Compton, who is also a business major, weighs in on her future, understanding that it is difficult to become a professional softball player. But for now, Compton is only worried about what she can control – helping her team reach its ultimate goals.

"As a team, we want to stay ranked in the Top 25," Compton said. "We obviously want to win the Mountain West and make it to postseason and go to super regionals. I just hope to get us to the regionals and just winning. That's my main goal. No matter what, I just want to win."

the Attack

By Daniel Leon
@DanLeon1994

In 2015, the Fresno State lacrosse program set a record for most single-season wins, and it enters 2016 with hefty expectations and a team captain to help lead the attack.

This preseason, junior midfielder Caroline Dineen-Carlson was selected by coaches and teammates as one of three team captains along with upperclassmen Sophia Aragon and Chyna Hill.

"[Being elected a captain], it means everything," Dineen-Carlson said. "It's really special that my team thinks of me that way, and I'm just super fortunate to be able to lead them the best I can."

The Coronado, California, native is coming off a solid 2015 sophomore campaign in which she netted 30 goals – a new single-season scoring record – on her way to earning Second-Team All-Mountain Pacific Sports Federation honors.

In addition, she is equipped with experience. She has started every game since arriving on campus in 2013, but despite being the returning leading scorer and one of the team's go-to players, she doesn't let the pressure consume her.

"I'm OK with it [the pressure]," Dineen-Carlson said. "I try not to think about the stats at all and just play my game and go in with a clear head every game. It's a little pressure, but it's not anything I worry about."

The beginning of Dineen-Carlson's lacrosse journey dates back to middle school when one of her siblings first introduced her to the sport.

"My older brother played lacrosse, so I would just play around with him like out in the street," she said. "I started liking it, so I went to a couple camps and started playing."

"I always wanted to [play in college], that was the goal. I thought watching college games was always really neat, so that was always my end goal. When I started going to tournaments, I hoped I would be good enough and I just did everything I could to make myself good enough. Once I came here, I knew this is where I wanted to be."

Dineen-Carlson's versatility to play both offense and defense comes in handy – especially at the midfielder position – but her speed is one of her key attributes that sets her apart and allows her to contribute the way she does.

"My speed is very important as a midfielder," she said. "We're constantly running back and forth all over the field, so I think it's really important to be able to get back on defense and then get back on attack as fast as we can. Also, being a leader all over the field – not just in one position – is really important for me."

"One of the biggest things I focus on is my draw controls because that's what starts off the play," she added. "So if we get the draw control, it makes it that much easier for us to score a goal."

With three goals through the first two games this season, Dineen-Carlson is on pace to put up 20-plus goals, but a team accomplishment, like making the postseason, is what she would like more than anything.

"The team goal is definitely to go to playoffs," she said. "That's the No. 1 goal for me this year."

Fresno State head coach Jessica Giglio expects her junior team captain to set the tone this season – both as a leader and as a playmaker.

"She's a great leader on the field," Giglio said. "She brings a lot and has worked very hard in her three years here – transitioning to a midfielder and being productive on both ends of the field. I think the other piece that Caroline brings is she scores goals and she's a playmaker. We try to get the ball in her hands, so she's definitely someone that we really look for to lead the attack."

"I chose to attend SJCL because of the return on investment. I researched bar passage rates and found that SJCL graduates were passing the bar at similar rates to students who graduated from schools that were 2-3 times the cost of the tuition at SJCL."

regionals. So all of us are definitely looking to improve our individual stats and also the team's win percentage."

While many of his teammates went on to play summer ball after the conclusion of the 2015 season, Lambert went back home to Southern California to give his pitching arm some time off and get his body right.

Lambert also put on some weight this offseason and significantly improved his overall strength.

"I always want to improve fastball command and command of all my pitches," he said. "That's definitely the big thing for pitchers. As far as getting stronger, I didn't play summer ball last summer, so I was able to go home and really just work out. I think that was big – to get stronger moving into this season."

Lambert has already begun to gain national attention for his play as he earned a spot as the 186th-best prospect on D1baseball.com's top 300 prospect list for the 2016 MLB Draft.

"I've always wanted to play Division I baseball and move onto the next level," Lambert said. "It's cool to be on there but it doesn't mean anything. You still have to go out there and play. I'm not satisfied with the number or anything so like I said, it doesn't mean anything because you still have to go out there, play and prove it on the field. Hopefully we can do that this year."

Lambert and the Bulldogs were picked to finish third in the preseason Mountain West poll released Feb. 16. The 'Dogs' three-year NCAA Tournament drought also adds fuel heading into this season.

"The main goal is to get to the conference championship and win the conference – both regular season and tournament," he said. "That way we win a ring, which is always the No. 1 goal, and then move on to regionals and see what happens."

Jimmy Lambert: Acing the Competition

By Daniel Leon
@DanLeon1994

Fresno State junior pitcher Jimmy Lambert doesn't shy away from pressure.

Even though it can certainly mount up for a player who appeared in 17 games and started a team-high 13 like Lambert did last season. The right-hander, nevertheless, appreciates that his team trusts in him enough to put him in those tense situations.

"Any time your teammates and coaches have confidence in you to go out there and start, it gives you more confidence in yourself," said Lambert, who has been playing baseball since he was five years old. "There's a lot of responsibility that comes along with being a pitcher, but that's just part of it. Whenever you decide to become a pitcher, you realize the level of responsibility that comes with it.

"I think experience helps with that a lot because now as a junior I'm able to manage some parts of the game better compared to when I was going out there as a freshman. You learn a lot about how to handle that different stuff, so I think all of us are going to benefit from that."

The Fresno State baseball program has a rich tradition not only with winning a College World Series title in 2008, but also sending players to the next level – something that caught Lambert's eye during the recruiting process.

"The history and winning tradition was definitely a big part [of why I came here], anything is more fun when you're winning" he said. "It's every kid's dream to go play in the major leagues and Fresno has been a hotbed for professional scouts, so that all played into the decision."

In 2015, the San Dimas, California, native posted a winning record of 4-2 to go along with a 4.66 ERA, both drastic improvements from his freshman year, but he still acknowledges that he has a long way to go to get his numbers where he wants them to be.

"You never want to be satisfied," Lambert said. "Those [stats] aren't good in general anyways. Definitely not happy with those, mainly because we didn't win enough games to win the conference and move on to re-
